KENNEDY PARK
RESORT NAPIER
Four Season Experience

A Brief History of Kennedy Park Resort Napier

Kennedy Park was named after Charles Kennedy, a Hawke's Bay Pioneer eminent in the Professions, Sport and Horticulture. Mr Kennedy's career ranged from Law to Civil Engineering.

Charles Kennedy's house stood in the grounds where Kennedy Park is now. He sold his home in 1922, but it was later damaged in the earthquake of 1931 and moved to another site.

Kennedy Park began in 1937 when the then Napier Borough Council was persuaded of the need for a Motor Camp and three acres were leased from the Harbour Board for this purpose. After various legalities, extra land was acquired and an area of approximately 17 ½ acres was vested in the Council. At the beginning, the area was run solely as a Motor Camp and consisted of camp sites, huts and caravan sites. It also included the adjacent Rose Garden.

During the war years the park was used by the army, who left behind several large army huts when the camp was vacated. During the postwar years these were used to provide transit accommodation for families awaiting permanent housing - the last family vacated the huts in 1957. The Council was then faced with the decision of what to do with the buildings.

At this time there was a shortage of holiday accommodation in Napier, so the Council converted the empty huts into self contained units. The demand was so great that in 1960 the council decided to erect more Motel units. A further eight were built out of the camps revenue. The two storey curved building opened in 1980. There were no new buildings until 1998 after management was assumed by Tourism Services Limited. The Park reverted to full Council control in 2003.

Kennedy Park now consists of Conference Facilities, 15 Villas, 24 Motel Units, 24 Holiday Units, 10 Deluxe Ensuite Units, 8 Ensuite Units, 6 Kitchen Cabins, 4 Standard Cabins and 170 Camping Sites.

And so began the legacy of Kennedy Park.
